Client Right to Receive Good Faith Estimate, in Accordance with 'No Surprises Act'

You have the right to receive a 'Good Faith Estimate' explaining how much your medical care will cost.

Under the law, health care providers need to give patients who don't have insurance or who are not using insurance an estimate of the bill for medical items and services.

- You have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate for the total expected cost of any non-emergency items or services. This includes related costs like medical tests, prescription drugs, equipment, and hospital fees.
- Make sure your health care provider gives you a Good Faith Estimate in writing at least 1 business day before your medical service or item. You can also ask your health care provider, and any other provider you choose, for a Good Faith Estimate before you schedule an item or service.
- If you receive a bill that is a least $400 more than your Good Faith Estimate, you can dispute the bill.
- Make sure to save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate

My signature below indicates I have received and read over this Client Right to Receive a Good Faith Estimate (GFE), I have received a Fee Schedule of the therapist's rates at this time and understand I will also receive a customized GFE before or during my first appointment, or during the first appointment of a new year. I understand I will receive a copy of my GFE, and I understand I can request log in information to my client portal to have access to my GFE electronically if desired, and understand that I can contact Andi Kumer, MA, LPC if I am unable to access the portal for any reason, and she will work to provide support to access the portal or provide my GFE from a different platform.
